Dear Friends:

When you have school districts with students speaking over 100 languages and dialects, it is important to bring people together through sports, parks, and recreation. For many, our parks and other public green spaces make life better and are a key part of staying mentally and physically healthy.

Regardless of age, income, or ethnicity, our parks are places for everyone to enjoy fresh air, exercise and contemplation. From weekend soccer games to after-school playdates to walks with friends, our parks provide us with the opportunity to decompress from transportation commutes and the stresses of life and to enjoy engaging with our community and nature.

I hope you find this guide helpful in discovering new parks to enjoy in our region.

With best wishes,

Pete von Reichbauer
King County Councilmember

WEYERHAEUSER KING COUNTY AQUATIC CENTER

celebrates years

35

ABOUT WKCAC

35 years ago, a team led by George Weyerhaeuser, Project Developer David Sabey, and then State Senator Pete von Reichbauer brought an idea to build a world-class aquatic center into fruition. Today, the Weyerhaeuser King County Aquatic Center (WKCAC) is a nationally renowned facility that is a jewel in Federal Way, hosting significant aquatic events throughout the year and serving as a regional facility for the community to learn and play.

We were able to build the Aquatic Center with a private/public partnership led by George Weyerhaeuser, David Sabey, and Pete von Reichbauer

Every year, the WKCAC provides more than $7.5 million to the surrounding economy. This influence is made possible by 350,000 guests who attend 50 events each year. We are fortunate in this region to have had some of the biggest names in aquatics participate at the WKCAC, including Michael Phelps, the greatest Olympian of all time, and Megan Jendrick, a gold medalist.
