As previously mentioned, over the past few months, ASD has begun compiling relevant policies from other government agencies into a centralized repository. As new policies are added, they are stored within an ASD policy container. The next steps will involve removing duplicates, assessing each policy's relevance, and adapting the language and content to align with ASD's specific business needs. A parallel effort is underway to develop a comprehensive contract management manual.

Policy Containers:

- Multi-Service Division Administrative Policies (MSD)
- Multi-Service Division Administrative Policies (MSD)
- Multi-Service Division Administrative Policies (MSD)
- Multi-Service Division Administrative Policies (MSD)

Contract Management Manual:

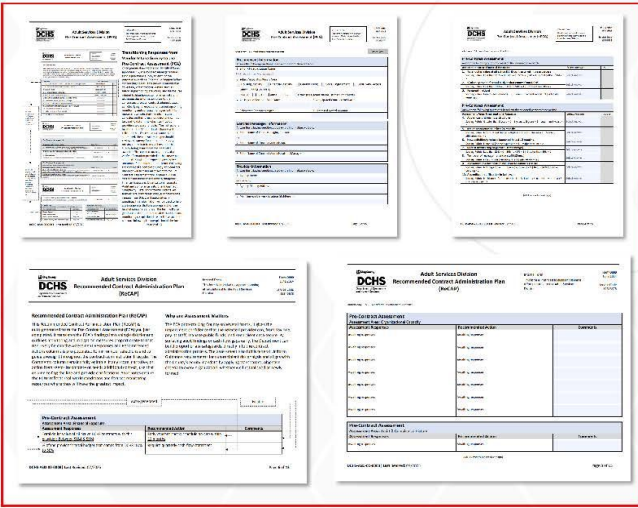

- Chapter 1: Introduction
- Chapter 2: Contract Management Process

Another project involves adapting Washington State's RAMP Pre-Vendor assessment so that ASD can establish a similar pre-contract assessment process for contracts. Using responses from a survey completed by providers, this modified tool would generate recommended monitoring approaches and concern mitigation strategies appropriate for the level of concern identified. Because there is often a delay between the establishment of a contract and the provider's first formal risk assessment, this would help the Division proactively address potential issues while avoiding unnecessary risk.

Role Distinction

Question: What do you see as the role distinction between division contract management, finance managers/BFOs, and compliance? This is especially relevant for:

- Invoice and General Ledger review
- Corrective Active Plan adherence

Current State: The current state consists of:

Invoice review:

- PM reviews invoice & associated back-up documentation
- PM communicates with provider if any documentation is missing, erroneous, or if there are unallowable expenses
- PM discusses with supervisor if invoice issues are unresolved
- PM approves invoice, then logs in ASD's internal invoice monitor tool
- Finance reviews invoice & associated back-up documentation
- Any questions or conflicts result in conversation between Finance & PM; elevate as needed
- Finance approves invoice when all questions are resolved
- Compliance consulted and informed when invoice submittals are subject to terms of the DCHS Concerns Escalation & Reporting Protocol

General Ledger review:

- PM reviews GLs for allocated payment model contracts at Q2 & Q3
- All questions resolved with provider; elevated to Lead, CIT Manager, and Deputy Director if needed
- Once resolved, PM forwards GL to Finance team for 2nd-level review, then logs GL results in invoice monitor tool
- All GLs resulting in material variances are subject to ASD's Contract Payment Structure Policy

Corrective Active Plan adherence

- Deputy Division Director reviews & signs all Corrective Action Plans issued
- PM communicates with provider and sets deadline expectations for response
- Compliance is cc'd on all Corrective Action Plan; receives and reviews responses

| Chapter: | Chapter 12: Contract Administration | Number: | AP 1.1 |
| Title: | Invoice and Payments | Effective Date: | 6/30/2025 |
| Policy Owner: | Michael Bailey, Division Director | Review Date: | 12/31/2025 |
| Approved By: | Michael Bailey, Division Director | Revision Letter: | 001 |
| Authorizing Source(s): | King County DCHS Re-Op Ordinance 18872 | Applies to: | All Employees |

1. Purpose
The following Purpose section reflects the Director's intent for the attached guidance:
Pursuant to Ordinance 18872, which establishes the establishment of the Adult Services Division within the King County Department of Community and Human Services and assigns it the responsibilities outlined in Section 1 of the ordinance including the development, support, and delivery of human services and programs, the Division has developed the following guidance to fulfill its mandate.

The purpose of this document is to provide the following guidance and describe responsibilities, procedures, and best practices governing the review and approval of contract invoices by Contract Management Staff. This guidance will help ensure that invoices are properly and consistently reviewed and analyzed in a standardized manner prior to making payments to service providers.

2. Persons Affected
The following Persons Affected section reflects the audience or targeted users pertinent to the attached policy:

2.1 This policy applies to contract managers, procurement staff, program staff, and any staff involved in contract oversight, management, or compliance.

Conclusion statement: N/A

3. Policy
The following Policy section reflects the policy intent of the Adult Services Division:

3.1 The policy is intended to provide the parameters for a standard approach for the review and approval of contract invoices governed by ASD. A standard of Invoice Review Policy process of review and approval guidance for contract providers and creates the environment necessary for an efficient review process for the program staff. Additional policy and practice standards to ensure the regularity of payment, delays in the delivery of critical social services. Additional documentation may be required where explicitly defined in the contract or otherwise state, federal or other guidance.

This guidance is applicable to payments and orders above the dollar purchase threshold (currently $5,000).

Question: How does your team currently hold contractors responsible for the following terms of DCHS contracts:

- Confirming no applicable debarment status
- Data reporting
- Conflict of interest requirements
- Insurance standards
- Subcontractor approval

Current State: The current state consists of:

All DCHS contract requirements are reviewed upon contract monitoring.

- Debarment: C&P confirms no debarment. If ASD identifies potential debarment, we will reach out to our C&P partners to confirm.
- Data reporting: PME and ASD collaborate to ensure submission of provider data.
- Conflict of Interest: ASD has had 1 instance of a potential for conflict of interest and took measures internally to ensure there would be no opportunity for a conflict to exist.
- Insurance standards: ASD follows the new DCHS guidelines for insurance and collaborates with C&P as needed.
- Subcontractor approval: ASD PMs receive request from contractors, review, and submit written approval as appropriate.
 - Area of opportunity – tracking receipt and approval.
 - Area of opportunity – documentation of what constitutes an appropriate subcontractor.

Future State: Establishment of Policies and Procedures, and a 2025 Procurement and Contract Management Manual.

Progress to date includes conducting an environmental scan of national standards, evaluating existing resources available through C&P, reviewing foundational work initiated by the previous OPS Director, and examining published policies and procedures from multiple state and county human services departments and procurement offices. Important Note: The U.S. Office of Federal Procurement Policy (OFPP) has adopted the NCMA Contract Management Standard™ as the basis for its new civilian agency contracting training framework in 2023.

This work led to the development of a modified representation of the NCMA Contract Management Domains and Practices which can be seen here. Also included here are policy opportunities, which we believe to be areas where concise, actionable policies can be created to guide staff. The modified domains and practices seen here will also serve as the organizational structure for the previously mentioned contract management manual. With both deliverables currently in progress, a screenshot of our progress is provided on the following slide.

As previously mentioned, over the past few months, ASD has begun compiling relevant policies from other government agencies into a centralized repository. As new policies are added, they are stored within an ASD policy container. The next steps will involve removing duplicates, assessing each policy's relevance, and adapting the language and content to align with ASD's specific business needs. A parallel effort is underway to develop a comprehensive contract management manual.

Another project involves adapting Washington State's RAMP Pre-Vendor assessment so that ASD can establish a similar pre-contract assessment process for contracts. Using responses from a survey completed by providers, this modified tool would generate recommended monitoring approaches and concern mitigation strategies appropriate for the level of concern identified. Because there is often a delay between the establishment of a contract and the provider's first formal risk assessment, this would help the Division proactively address potential issues while avoiding unnecessary risk.

Role Distinction

Question: What do you see as the role distinction between division contract management, finance managers/BFOs, and compliance? This is especially relevant for:

- Invoice and General Ledger review
- Corrective Active Plan adherence

Current State: The current state consists of:

Invoice review:

- PM reviews invoice & associated back-up documentation
- PM communicates with provider if any documentation is missing, erroneous, or if there are unallowable expenses
- PM discusses with supervisor if invoice issues are unresolved
- PM approves invoice, then logs in ASD's internal invoice monitor tool
- Finance reviews invoice & associated back-up documentation
- Any questions or conflicts result in conversation between Finance & PM; elevate as needed
- Finance approves invoice when all questions are resolved
- Compliance consulted and informed when invoice submittals are subject to terms of the DCHS Concerns Escalation & Reporting Protocol

General Ledger review:

- PM reviews GLs for allocated payment model contracts at Q2 & Q3
- All questions resolved with provider; elevated to Lead, CIT Manager, and Deputy Director if needed
- Once resolved, PM forwards GL to Finance team for 2nd-level review, then logs GL results in invoice monitor tool
- All GLs resulting in material variances are subject to ASD's Contract Payment Structure Policy

Corrective Active Plan adherence

- Deputy Division Director reviews & signs all Corrective Action Plans issued
- PM communicates with provider and sets deadline expectations for response
- Compliance is cc'd on all Corrective Action Plan; receives and reviews responses

Adult Services Division Administrative Guidance (AG)

| | | | |
|----------------------|--|------------------|---------------|
| Chapter: | Chapter 10: Contract Administration | Number: | AP 2.1 |
| Title: | Invoice and Payments | Effective Date: | 6/30/2022 |
| Policy Owner: | Division Director | Revision Date: | 12/01/2025 |
| Approved by: | Michael Bailey, Division Director | Revision Letter: | Clar |
| Authoring Source(s): | King County, DCHS Re-Op Contract 18872 | Applies to: | All employees |

1. Purpose
The following Purpose section reflects the Division's intent for the attached guidance:
Pursuant to DCHS 18872, which outlines the establishment of the Adult Services Division within the King County Department of Community and Human Services and assigns to the responsible parties outlined in Section 6 of the ordinance, including the development, support, and delivery of human services and programs, the Division has developed the following section in order to provide guidance to all staff members.

The purpose of this document is to provide working guidance and describe responsibilities, procedures, and timelines governing the review and approval of contractor invoices by Contract Management Staff. This guidance will help ensure that invoices are properly and consistently reviewed and analyzed in a standardized manner prior to making payments to contractors.

2. Persons Affected
The following Persons Affected section reflects the audience or targeted users pertinent to the attached policy.

2.1 This policy applies to contract managers, procurement staff, program leads, and any staff involved in contract oversight, management, or compliance.

3. Revision statement: N/A

4. Policy
The following Policy section reflects the policy intent of the Adult Services Division:

4.1 The policy is intended to provide the parameters for a standard approach for the review and approval of contractor invoices governed by ASH. A standard of Invoice Review Policy ensures that all invoices are properly reviewed and approved, and that the review process is consistent across all invoices. A standard policy and procedure to monitor the regularity of invoice submissions on the delivery of critical services. Additional documentation may be required where applicable related to the contract or governing entity, federal or other grant guidelines.

This guidance is applicable to contractors and vendors whose invoices exceed the threshold (currently $5,000).

5. Minimum requirements for a valid invoice:

Contract Enforcement

Question: How does your team currently hold contractors responsible for the following terms of DCHS contracts:

- Confirming no applicable debarment status
- Data reporting
- Conflict of interest requirements
- Insurance standards
- Subcontractor approval

Current State: The current state consists of:

All DCHS contract requirements are reviewed upon contract monitoring.

- Debarment: C&P confirms no debarment. If ASD identifies potential debarment, we will reach out to our C&P partners to confirm.
- Data reporting: PME and ASD collaborate to ensure submission of provider data.
- Conflict of Interest: ASD has had 1 instance of a potential for conflict of interest and took measures internally to ensure there would be no opportunity for a conflict to exist.
- Insurance standards: ASD follows the new DCHS guidelines for insurance and collaborates with C&P as needed.
- Subcontractor approval: ASD PMs receive request from contractors, review, and submit written approval as appropriate.
 - Area of opportunity – tracking receipt and approval.
 - Area of opportunity – documentation of what constitutes an appropriate subcontractor.

Adult Services Division Administrative Guidance (AG)

| | |
|---|----------------------------------|
| Chapter: Chapter 16: Contract Administration | Number: AG 1.1 |
| Subject: CONTRACT ADMINISTRATION | Effective Date: 9/30/2025 |
| Policy Owner: Division Director | Review Date: 12/30/2029 |
| Approved by: Mitchell Bailey, Division Director | Revision Letter: Draft |
| Authoring Source(s): King County DCHS Re-Org Ordinance 18872 | Applies to: All Employees |

1. Purpose
The following Purpose section reflects the Division's intent for the attached guidance.

Pursuant to Ordinance 18872, which authorized the establishment of the Adult Services Division within the King County Department of Community and Human Services and assigns it the responsibilities outlined in Sections 2 of the ordinance, including the development, support, and delivery of human services and programs, the Division has developed the following administrative guidance to fulfill this mandate.

This guidance document outlines:

- Continuous administrative policies and procedures across seven (7) general processes.

2. Scope
The following Scope section reflects the audience or targeted users pertinent to the attached policy.

2.1. This policy applies to:

- All Contract Management Staff.

Exclusion statement: N/A

3. Policy
The following Policy section reflects the policy intent of the Adult Services Division.

3.1. Contract administration and oversight includes the following seven (7) general processes:

- Planning
- Monitoring Performance
- Change Management
- Payment Approval (through Department End Users)
- Dispute Resolution
- Termination
- Contract Close-out

The primary focus of contract administration includes:

- Verifying contractor performance for purposes of payment.
- Determining if there needs to be any changes in the scope of work, on length of contract, or costs.
- Monitoring any material to costs of the contract by assessing the difference between contractor's actual performance and contract requirements.

Adult Services Division Annual Community Impact Framework

Calendar Year 2025 – 2026

Department Vision
The Department of Community and Human Services supports and maintains vital communities, families and individuals.

Division Mission
The Adult Services Division works in partnership with communities to develop, support and provide human services programs focused on housing and financial stability, healthy living and social engagement for veterans, servicemembers and their families; older adults and their caregivers; and other resilient communities. The division's work also includes efforts to strengthen connections within, and improve access to, the human services system.

Division Values
Relations – Integrity – Services - Equity

Division Director's Office

Provide strategic leadership, accountability, and vision, ensuring Adult Services Division programs deliver equitable, transparent, and measurable results for King County residents.

King County Veteran's Program

Deliver respectful, client-centered navigation and supports that honor veterans and families, advancing housing stability, financial security, health, and community connection.

King County Veteran's Initiatives Team

Advance veteran well-being by managing contracts that reduce homelessness, support reentry, and expand access to culturally responsive and effective supportive services.

Policy and Community Engagement Team

Elevate community and client voice to shape equitable policies, expand access, and strengthen accountability across King County's human services strategies.

Community Investment Team/Operations

Steward levy funds through equitable, transparent procurement and contracting, supporting community-based organizations in delivering evidence-informed, measurable services and outcomes.

Internal Systems Team

Develop and maintain strong internal controls, policies, and systems that ensure compliance, accountability, efficiency, and success across the Adult Services Division.

Resource Access Team

Expand equitable service access by coordinating outreach events, navigation supports, and partnerships, strengthening community connections across all nine council districts.

1.0 Purpose
The following Purpose section reflects the Division's intent for the attached guidance.
Pursuant to Ordinance 198772, which authorizes the establishment of the Adult Services Division within the King County Department of Community and Human Services and assigns it the responsibilities outlined in Section 1.1 of the ordinance including the development, support, and delivery of human services and programs, the Division has developed the following administrative guidance to fulfill this mission.
The purpose of this guidance is to establish the Division's approach to contract oversight and support. This includes developing, reviewing, and maintaining contracts, managing contract risks, and ensuring timely and compliant performance in the contracting relationship.

2.0 Context
The following Context section reflects the Division's intent for the attached guidance.

Fraud Prevention Course

REVIEW COURSE

Welcome to the DCPS Learning Campus: Fraud Prevention Training.

Thank you for joining today's training and welcome to the DCPS Learning Campus.

This course is designed to help DCPS team members strengthen their understanding of fraud prevention, and to reinforce one shared responsibility: safeguarding public resources. Whether you work directly with contracts, budgets, or community programs, this training will provide tools to help you recognize, prevent, and respond to potential outcomes of fraud.

In this module, you will:

- Learn what constitutes fraud, waste, and abuse.
- Explore common risk areas, including conflicts of interest, false claims, and theft.
- Identify early warning signs and red flags.
- Review practical prevention strategies such as internal controls, segregation of duties, and documentation practices.

Section 1: Why Fraud Prevention Matters

1:18

Fraud prevention is a critical part of your role as a public employee and steward of taxpayer dollars.

At the King County Department of Community and Human Services (DCHS), we receive local, state, and federal funding to serve some of the most vulnerable members of our community. Every dollar we spend must be:

- Allowable (authorized under funding rules),
- Allocable (used specifically for the intended purpose), and
- Reasonable (based on fair and appropriate cost for services provided).

Misuse, whether intentional or unintentional, puts our work, our clients, and our future funding at risk. It can lead to:

- Suspension or termination of funding
- Ineligibility for future grants
- Administrative recovery (being required to pay back funds)
- Civil penalties or criminal prosecution

Process for Adjusting this Plan's Allocations

The investment allocations in this Implementation Plan are intended to represent investment level estimates, based on both fiscal and programmatic assumptions. As VSHSL strategies and programs are deployed and funded, economic conditions may impact revenues or expenditures which might require program or funding level adjustments.

If the Executive decides to make a substantive change to the funding allocations in this plan, the Executive will transmit a notification letter to the King County Council detailing the scope of and rationale for the change. Unless the Council passes a motion rejecting the contemplated change within 30 days of the Executive's transmittal, the Executive may proceed with the change as set forth in the notification letter. Any change must be made in accordance with the VSHSL's eligible expenditures outlined in Ordinance 19604.³⁴

Adult Services Division Annual Community Impact Framework

Calendar Year 2025 – 2026

Department Vision
The Department of Community and Human Services supports and maintains vital communities, families and individuals.

Division Mission
The Adult Services Division works in partnership with communities to develop, support and provide human services programs focused on housing and financial stability, healthy living and social engagement for veterans, servicemembers and their families; older adults and their caregivers; and other resilient communities. The division's work also includes efforts to strengthen connections within, and improve access to, the human services system.

Division Values
Relations – Integrity – Services - Equity

Division Director's Office

Provide strategic leadership, accountability, and vision, ensuring Adult Services Division programs deliver equitable, transparent, and measurable results for King County residents.

King County Veteran's Program

Deliver respectful, client-centered navigation and supports that honor veterans and families, advancing housing stability, financial security, health, and community connection.

King County Veteran's Initiatives Team

Advance veteran well-being by managing contracts that reduce homelessness, support reentry, and expand access to culturally responsive and effective supportive services.

Policy and Community Engagement Team

Elevate community and client voice to shape equitable policies, expand access, and strengthen accountability across King County's human services strategies.

Community Investment Team/Operations

Steward levy funds through equitable, transparent procurement and contracting, supporting community-based organizations in delivering evidence-informed, measurable services and outcomes.

Internal Systems Team

Develop and maintain strong internal controls, policies, and systems that ensure compliance, accountability, efficiency, and success across the Adult Services Division.

Resource Access Team

Expand equitable service access by coordinating outreach events, navigation supports, and partnerships, strengthening community connections across all nine council districts.

Fraud Prevention Course

RENE COURTE

Welcome to the DCPS Learning Campus: Fraud Prevention Training.

Thank you for joining today's training and welcome to the DCPS Learning Campus.

This course is designed to help DCPS team members strengthen their understanding of fraud prevention, and to reinforce one shared responsibility: safeguarding public resources. Whether you work directly with contracts, budgets, or community programs, this training will provide tools to help you recognize, prevent, and respond to potential outcomes of fraud.

In this module, you will:

- Learn what constitutes fraud, waste, and abuse.
- Explore common risk areas, including conflicts of interest, false claims, and theft.
- Identify early warning signs and red flags.
- Review practical prevention strategies such as internal controls, separation of duties, and documentation practices.

Section 1: Why Fraud Prevention Matters

Fraud prevention is a critical part of your role as a public employee and steward of taxpayer dollars.

At the King County Department of Community and Human Services (DCHS), we receive local, state, and federal funding to serve some of the most vulnerable members of our community. Every dollar we spend must be:

- Allowable (authorized under funding rules),
- Allocable (used specifically for the intended purpose), and
- Reasonable (based on fair and appropriate cost for services provided).

Misuse, whether intentional or unintentional, puts our work, our clients, and our future funding at risk. It can lead to:

- Suspension or termination of funding
- Ineligibility for future grants
- Administrative recovery (being required to pay back funds)
- Civil penalties or criminal prosecution

Process for Adjusting this Plan's Allocations

The investment allocations in this Implementation Plan are intended to represent investment level estimates, based on both fiscal and programmatic assumptions. As VSHSL strategies and programs are deployed and funded, economic conditions may impact revenues or expenditures which might require program or funding level adjustments.

If the Executive decides to make a substantive change to the funding allocations in this plan, the Executive will transmit a notification letter to the King County Council detailing the scope of and rationale for the change. Unless the Council passes a motion rejecting the contemplated change within 30 days of the Executive's transmittal, the Executive may proceed with the change as set forth in the notification letter. Any change must be made in accordance with the VSHSL's eligible expenditures outlined in Ordinance 19604.³⁴

Board Recruitment Packet

The Veterans, Seniors, and Human Services Levy Advisory Board

The Veterans, Seniors, and Human Services Levy Advisory Board operates within the King County Department of Community and Human Services (DCHS) and provides community-informed guidance on the implementation of the Veterans, Seniors, and Human Services Levy (VSHSL).

The Advisory Board centers the voices, lived experience, and expertise of community members and serves in an advisory capacity to support equitable, transparent, and accountable use of voter-approved Levy funds. Through population-focused subcommittees, the Board provides insight on investments that promote housing stability, healthy living, financial stability, social engagement, and service system access and improvement for veterans, aging adults and caregivers, and resilient communities across King County.

Serving on the Advisory Board is an opportunity to contribute to public decision-making, elevate community priorities, and help shape a service system that supports residents to live with dignity, stability, and connection.

King County Initiatives

The Veterans, Seniors, and Human Services Levy

King County, Washington
King County is the 12th largest county in the United States, serving more than 2.3 million residents across urban, suburban, and rural communities. The County provides essential services that touch every aspect of daily life, from public health and transit to environmental protection and human services. Guided by values of equity and social justice, King County is committed to ensuring that all residents have the opportunity to thrive.

The King County Department of Community and Human Services (DCHS)
DCHS works to ensure that all people in King County can achieve their fullest potential. DCHS oversees a wide range of programs and initiatives that support residents across the lifespan, with a focus on equity, resilience, and opportunity. The Department's mission is to provide effective and accountable services that improve the quality of life for individuals, families, and communities. DCHS is organized into divisions that oversee services in housing, behavioral health, developmental disabilities, veterans and seniors, youth and family support, and employment and education programs. Each division partners closely with community-based organizations, other government agencies, and residents themselves to co-design solutions that meet community needs.

The Adult Services Division (ASD)
The Adult Services Division (ASD) is one of the divisions within King County's Department of Community and Human Services. ASD serves as a central hub for programs and investments that support adults, older adults, veterans, and their families. ASD works to strengthen individual and community well-being by investing in housing stability, financial security, health, and social connectedness by leading strategic investments that are outlined by and funded through the Veterans, Seniors and Human Services Levy. The Division also leads system-level work to improve service coordination and build provider capacity.

Understanding The Veterans, Seniors, and Human Services Levy (VSHSL)

The Veterans, Seniors, and Human Services Levy (VSHSL) is a voter-approved, locally funded initiative that supports services for veterans, seniors, caregivers, and communities that face barriers to accessing essential supports across King County.

First approved by voters in 2011 and renewed by voters in subsequent cycles, the Levy reflects a shared public commitment to investing in housing stability, health, financial security, social connection, and access to services. Levy funds are distributed through a combination of community-based organizations and County-operated programs.

Because the Levy is locally funded, it provides King County with flexibility to respond to community-identified needs while maintaining accountability to voters through public reporting, advisory oversight, and transparent decision-making.

What the Levy Supports

Levy investments are organized around five result areas that reflect community priorities and voter intent:

- Housing Stability – supporting individuals and families to obtain and maintain safe, stable housing
- Healthy Living – promoting physical, behavioral, and mental health
- Financial Stability – helping residents meet basic needs and improve economic security
- Social Engagement – reducing isolation and strengthening community connection
- Service System Access and Improvement – improving how people access services and navigate systems

Together, these result areas form a coordinated approach to improving well-being and reducing disparities across King County.

Priority Populations Served by the Levy

The Levy prioritizes three population groups identified in authorizing legislation:

Veterans, military servicemembers, and their families.

- This priority population includes individuals who have served or are currently serving in the United States Armed Forces, including active duty, National Guard, and reserve members, as well as members of their families.

Seniors and their caregivers.

- This priority population includes individuals 55 years of age or older, as well as caregivers who provide support to seniors. Caregivers may be family members or others with an ongoing personal relationship to the senior, regardless of whether caregiving is their primary role.

Resilient communities.

- Resilient communities include individuals and groups who are more likely to experience reduced health, housing, financial, or social stability due to systemic or historical barriers. These barriers may include exposure to trauma, violence, poverty, isolation, discrimination, racism, stigma, disability, or chronic illness.

These priority populations guide how investments are planned and implemented.

The VSHSL Framework

One System, 3 Priority Populations, 5 Result Areas, 55 Strategies

Blazing a Path Forward

In its twentieth year, the Veterans, Seniors, and Human Services Levy (VSHSL) continues to invest in the strength and well-being of King County's people and communities. Through partnerships with nonprofit organizations, community-based coalitions, and local governments, the VSHSL helps individuals and families access the support they need to live with dignity, connection, and purpose.

VSHSL Result Areas

To create meaningful and measurable change, the VSHSL organizes its work around five interconnected result areas that reflect the essential building blocks of a thriving community. Each of these five result areas can be found in the space below. Be sure to look on pages 6 and 7 for more.

Service System Access and Improvement: Strengthening the capacity, coordination, and accessibility of human service systems.

Financial Stability: Expanding opportunities for economic security and financial resilience.

Healthy Living: Promoting physical, mental, and behavioral health and overall well-being.

Housing Stability: Ensuring individuals and families have access to safe, stable, and affordable housing.

Social Engagement: Building connection, belonging, and community participation.

VSHSL Priority Populations

In addition to its Result Areas, the VSHSL also centers its investments around three priority populations in addition to the human service worker population. Each of those populations can be found in the space below.

Resilient Communities: Partnering with communities that have been historically and systemically marginalized to strengthen their collective resilience and access to opportunity.

Seniors and Caregivers: Promoting independence, caregiving support, and age-friendly communities.

Veterans, Military Service Members, and Their Families: Honoring and supporting those who have served through targeted investments in stability and well-being.

Nonprofits and Coalitions: Strengthening the human services sector by supporting nonprofit organizations, coalitions, and networks.

Our VSHSL Strategies

How Each Strategy Works Together

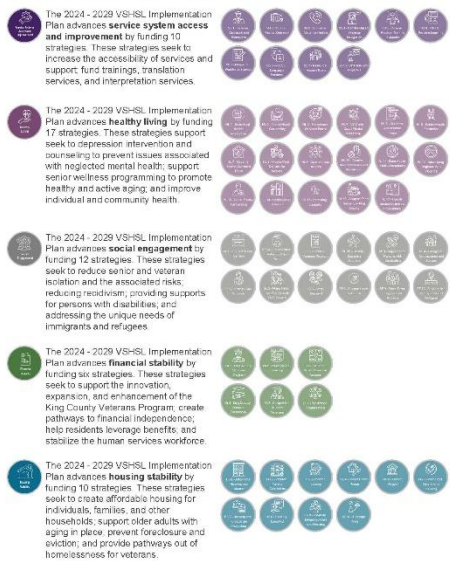

The 2024 - 2029 VSHSL Implementation Plan advances service system access and improvement by funding 10 strategies. These strategies seek to increase the accessibility of services and support, fund trainings, translation services, and interpretation services.

The 2024 - 2029 VSHSL Implementation Plan advances healthy living by funding 17 strategies. These strategies support seeking to depression intervention and counseling to prevent issues associated with neglected mental health; support senior wellness programming to promote healthy and active aging; and improve individual and community health.

The 2024 - 2029 VSHSL Implementation Plan advances social engagement by funding 12 strategies. These strategies seek to reduce senior and veteran isolation and the associated risks; reducing reentry; providing supports for persons with disabilities; and addressing the unique needs of immigrants and refugees.

The 2024 - 2029 VSHSL Implementation Plan advances financial stability by funding six strategies. These strategies seek to support the innovation, expansion, and enhancement of the King County Veterans Program; create pathways to financial independence; help residents leverage benefits; and stabilize the human services workforce.

The 2024 - 2029 VSHSL Implementation Plan advances housing stability by funding 10 strategies. These strategies seek to create affordable housing for individuals, families, and other households; support older adults with aging in place; prevent foreclosure and eviction; and provide pathways out of homelessness for veterans.

King County's Four Bs

How Our Strategies are Powering the King County Executives 4 Bs

Executive Zahilay's Vision for King County
Under the leadership of Executive Zahilay, King County has articulated a vision for government that is responsive, community-centered, and focused on delivering meaningful results for residents. The Veterans, Seniors, and Human Services Levy aligns with this vision by investing locally, centering community voice, and strengthening systems that help break cycles of instability, build affordability, promote better government, and increase services and supports where they are needed most.

BREAKING THE CYCLE

Breaking the cycle of homelessness, addiction, and incarceration by expanding treatment, emergency and supportive housing, recovery, and reentry pathways while pairing safety with care.

BUILDING FOR AFFORDABILITY

"Building more" housing people can afford and connecting the region with reliable, safe public transit so residents can get to work, school, and opportunity, as well as building more child care and building our businesses so families can thrive and local employers can hire, grow, and create good jobs.

BOOTS ON THE GROUND

"Boots on the ground" with a customer-service oriented county government; cleanup crews improving streets and public spaces, outreach teams moving people indoors and connecting them to services, navigators helping residents access what they need, and an effort that activates the volunteer spirit of our region.

BETTER GOVERNMENT

"Better government" is achieved through the implementation of the Executive's King County Delivers Plan, which promotes accountability, efficiency, effectiveness, and transparency across County government.

Roles and Commitments

The Role of a VSHSL Advisory Board Member

Serving as An Advisory Board Member
Serving on the Veterans, Seniors, and Human Services Levy Advisory Board is a public service role centered on community voice, lived experience, and stewardship of a voter-approved public investment. Board members serve in an advisory capacity, helping inform how Levy funds are implemented to advance equitable outcomes across King County.

What Board Members Do
As a member of the Advisory Board, you will:

- Bring lived experience, community perspective, or subject-matter expertise to community discussions
- Review information, data, and materials prepared by County staff
- Participate in public meetings and population-focused subcommittees
- Ask questions, share insights, and contribute to advisory recommendations
- Help ensure investments remain aligned with voter intent and community need

Advisory, Not Operational
The Advisory Board's role is advisory only. Board members do not:

- Select service providers
- Approve contracts or budgets
- Direct County staff
- Represent the County in an official capacity

This distinction helps maintain clear roles and supports transparency and public trust.

Serving Through Subcommittees
Each Board member serves on one of three standing subcommittees aligned with a Levy priority population:

- Veterans, military servicemembers, and their families
- Aging adults and caregivers
- Resilient communities

Subcommittees allow members to engage more deeply with issues affecting specific populations and bring focused insights back to the full Board.

Preparing to Serve

How to Apply For Consideration

Applying to Be A Board Member
Serving on the Veterans, Seniors, and Human Services Levy Advisory Board is an opportunity to contribute your voice, experience, and perspective to a voter-approved public investment that supports communities across King County.

King County encourages applications from individuals with lived experience, professional expertise, and strong connections to the Levy's priority populations.

Eligibility
To be eligible for appointment, applicants must:

- Reside in King County
- Be able to serve in a public, advisory capacity
- Have lived experience, professional expertise, or demonstrated connection to one or more Levy priority populations:
 - Veterans, military servicemembers, and their families
 - Aging adults and caregivers
 - Resilient communities
- Be willing and able to participate in public meetings, review materials, and engage in advisory discussions

Additional Eligibility Considerations

- Individuals employed by organizations that receive VSHSL funding may be eligible, but must:
 - Disclose potential conflicts of interest
 - Agree to recuse themselves from votes or discussions where a conflict may reasonably be perceived
- Appointment to a subcommittee constitutes full appointment to the Advisory Board, with all associated responsibilities and voting rights.

Appointment Process
Advisory Board members are appointed by the King County Executive from nominations submitted by designated nominating entities, which include:

- King County Councilmembers
- The City of Seattle
- The Sound Cities Association
- The Seattle-King County Advisory Council on Aging and Disability Services

Following nomination, applicants may be invited to participate in a brief interview. Final appointments are transmitted to and confirmed by the King County Council.

How to Express Interest
Individuals interested in serving are encouraged to:

- Respond to recruitment announcements issued by the King County Department of Community and Human Services, or
- Contact a designated nominating entity to express interest and learn more about current or upcoming vacancies

Recruitment materials typically include information about:

- Available subcommittee seats
- Desired lived experience or expertise
- Application steps and timelines

What to Expect After Applying
Applicants who move forward in the process will receive additional information about:

- Meeting schedules and time commitments
- Board responsibilities and bylaws
- Orientation and onboarding materials

Applicants not selected for immediate appointment may be considered for future vacancies.

I-A. Introduction to the Contract Management Standard™

The Contract Management Standard™ was updated and reaffirmed through a rigorous global process involving materially affected and interested parties to broaden its relevance to the international marketplace.

Conceptually, the process was based on due process, which was established through consensus, openness, lack of dominance, and a balance of interests. Specifically, the process included a job task analysis survey, expert drafting, peer review, and public comment validation.

- This is an American National Standard approved and reaffirmed by the American National Standards Institute (ANSI), which is the sole United States representative to the International Organization for Standardization (ISO). It is independent of other ANSI and ISO standards, and it is a document established through the consensus-based activities of an accredited, authoritative organization.¹

The consensus and repeated use of a consensus-based standard will improve productivity, increase efficiency, and reduce costs.²

- This is a global standard designed and developed with the entire world in mind to ensure the process is generic through job tasks, competencies, and domains are internationally suitable, reliable, and of high quality while being applicable to all jurisdictions and markets.
- This is a voluntary consensus standard developed or adopted by voluntary consensus standard bodies through the use of a development process characterized by openness, balance, the process, consensus, and the right to appeal. The inclusiveness and integrity of the ANSI process encourages participation in the broadest range of subject-matter experts, resulting in high-quality standards that protect the public and foster fair commerce and innovation.

Effective contract management can produce results that serve as strategic enablers to foster business innovation, collaboration, and long-term value creation. The success of buyers and sellers can be assessed not only through direct interaction (e.g., negotiations, contract performance), but also when there is no direct interaction between the parties (e.g., planning). Success of one party is not likely to occur without the success of the other party. Successful contract management is more likely to occur when both parties clearly understand all job tasks, competencies, and deliverables.

I-A. Introduction to the Contract Management Standard™ (continued)

I-A.4 Definitions
In the discipline of contract management, the following are common terms with their basic definitions:

- 1. Contract management – a discipline that brings value through buying and selling via the execution of job tasks in accordance with the Guiding Principles, as defined in the Contract Management Standard™. See Guiding Principles and Management (1.1).
- 2. Contract management discipline – a career field comprised of multiple business professions, in parts carried out by professional contract managers.
- 3. Contract management profession – the career field dedicated to contract management.
- 4. Award – the execution, consent, or acceptance of a contract after the buyer and seller come to an agreement on terms and conditions to deliver goods and services.
- 5. Contract – a legally enforceable business instrument for the sale, purchase, or lease of goods or services or the construction, alteration, or repair of real property. The agreement is either an exchange of obligations and/or rights to act or refrain from acting in a specified way (bilateral contract) or an exchange of an act for an obligation and/or right (unilateral contract, e.g., a purchase order). To be legally enforceable such agreements must satisfy the requirements of pertinent systems of laws, codes, regulations, treaties, and international agreements.

Contracts include acquisitions, framework agreements, grants, leases, licenses, orders, procurements, purchases, subcontracts, and other highly enforceable agreements consistent with the above description.

Orders may be issued by award, contract, or acceptance as standalone contracts themselves or as an order made against an established contract.

A contract must consist of four essential elements:

- Offer;
- Acceptance;
- Consideration; and
- The intention to create a legal relationship – entered into by parties with the legal competence in contract.

For a contract to be valid, both parties must indicate that they agree to the terms. For a contract to be binding, it must be for a legal purpose and it can only be made by parties who are competent.

Contracts have two major components:

- General features – These include such actions as principal and agency, types of authority, essential elements of a contract, market research, competition, fair and reasonable prices, governing law, authority of authorizing parties, and others, and
- Terms and conditions to address specific contract matters – These include such components as scope, delivery (e.g., International Commercial (INCOTERMS) Terms, insurance, timing/schedule), quality, acceptance, title transfer, force majeure, change in law, risk of loss, repudiation, breach and remedies, payment terms (including currency), contract changes and claims, suspension, and termination.

6. Contract manager – the designated, professional representative(s) or agent(s) for a contracting party that brings value through buying and selling via the planning, execution, and/or monitoring of the management of contracts, as defined in the Contract Management Standard™.

7. Contracting parties – the two primary roles of a contract manager – the buyer and the seller.

Buyer – the contracting party with the requirement for goods or services to be fulfilled by one or more sellers.

Seller – the contracting party involved with fulfilling the buyer's requirement for goods or services.

8. Contract performance – the execution of the terms of a contract.

9. Customer – the person or organization with the identified need and is the recipient or user of goods or services to be delivered under a contract.

10. Delivery – the formal act of transferring goods or performing services under the terms and conditions of a contract.

11. Management – the art of conducting business.

The key requirements of management are setting objectives and planning; organizing; motivating and communicating; measuring performance; and developing individual competence and organizational capability.

12. Stakeholder – a person, group, or organization with a vested interest or stake. But influences the decision making or activities of the contract.

I-A.5 Structure
The Contract Management Standard™ structure is comprised of five components (see Figure 1):

- Guiding principles – These principles apply to all phases of the Contract Life Cycle.
- Contract Life Cycle phases – The phases of a contract: Pre-award, Award, and Post-award.
- Domains – The areas within a Contract Life Cycle phase that produce significant contract management outcomes.
- Competencies – The processes utilized to produce the expected contract management outcomes of the domains. These processes involve the ability to perform multiple job tasks, both simultaneously and sequentially, while achieving meaningful results.
- Job tasks – The tasks to be performed on a best practice basis by contract managers. Such job tasks are systematically presented to achieve the expected results of the competencies. Though the job tasks are presented as lists, contract management professionals are expected to skillfully process them sequentially or sequentially, as appropriate, throughout the Contract Life Cycle.

1.0 Guiding principles

Guiding principles apply throughout all phases of the Contract Life Cycle. They provide the framework of behaviors and approach to conducting contract management by contract managers or delegated personnel. Simply put, while the processes describe what contract managers commonly do, the guiding principles describe how contract management should be conducted (see Figure 3).

1.0 Guiding principles (continued)

1.1 Knowledge, skills, and roles
Contract management requires learning a body of knowledge, using a broad and integrated set of skills, and performing several roles.

1.1.1 Knowledge
Contract management requires learning a body of knowledge, which is a special knowledge gained through research, academic study, training, certification, and continuous learning. The Contract Management Standard™ defines what is included in this body of knowledge. There are many sources of the contract management body of knowledge including government, industry, academic, legal bodies, associations, and international bodies. Contract managers apply the contract management body of knowledge to achieve the goals of the stakeholders and the contract management discipline.

1.1.2 Skills
Skill is the ability to use one's knowledge effectively and readily in execution or performance. Proficiency in a skill is typically characterized by years of experience, a degree of competence, the results achieved, and the manner of achievement. Contract management requires skills in the following areas. The words inside the parenthesis are some examples of the application of the skill and are not to be interpreted as a comprehensive list of applications of that skill.

- Agency (fiduciary) responsibility, duties, authority;
- Budgeting (spending plan, income, expenses, allocation of resources, tracking);
- Business capture (bidding, proprietary agreements);
- Business ethics (behavior, resulting gray areas);
- Collaboration with other contract management professionals (including project, technical, financial, supply chain, quality, legal, property, data, information technology);
- Communicating (written, oral, visual);
- Compliance with requirements (legal, regulatory, organizational, contractual);
- Contract formation (statement of work requirements, terms and conditions, offer, acceptance, consideration, valid purpose, legality);
- Contract interpretation (rules, order of precedent, case law);
- Contract performance (price/cost, technical, delivery, discount);
- Conflict resolution (contract interpretation, claims, disputes);
- Due diligence (exercise of care, transaction);
- Negotiations (good faith, principled, interest-based bargaining);

- Leading (vision, mission, guide, influence, emotional intelligence, alignment to organizational goals);
- Personal initiative (timely decisions within authority, advise others outside their authority);
- Planning (strategic, operational, contract required);
- Process improvement (effectiveness, efficiency, metrics, measurement, innovation);
- Relationship management (customers, stakeholders, internally, externally);
- Request analysis and evaluation (price, cost, technical, best value);
- Responding (work requirements, terms and conditions, contract type, methods);
- Responding to requirements, responses (costs);
- Risk management (assessment, strategies);
- Sound professional judgment (creativity, objectivity, experience, determinations, findings, justifications, approvals, recommendations);
- Sourcing (make or buy, market research, business relationship, responsibility);
- Staffing (organizing, hiring, developing, training, recruiting, mentoring);

1.1.3 Roles
Contract managers use their contract management skills to accomplish the roles they are assigned. A role is a set of responsibilities or duties that a person is expected to perform within a certain position or job. While there is some overlap between roles and skills, roles define broad job functions, while skills specify abilities. A role can require multiple skills, and a single skill can be useful in multiple roles.

- Roles can be organized into three broad categories:
- Interpersonal roles – These are responsibilities related to interacting with team members and stakeholders. This includes figurehead, leader, and liaison.
 - Informational roles – This category describes the duties for processing, generating, and exchanging information to reach organizational goals. This includes monitor, disseminator, and spokesperson.
 - Decisional roles – These roles involve using available information to make strategic business decisions. This includes regulator, disturbance handler, resource allocator, and entrepreneur.

1.2 Commercial acumen

Commercial acumen describes the process knowledge of strategic governance and oversight of contractual relationships in the context of the organization's intended outcomes, buyer and seller objectives, and capabilities, market conditions, commercial risk management, and other elements competing the overall contract to which the contracts are formed and managed. Commercial acumen therefore comprises all areas of professional practice that are relevant to conducting commerce, insofar as they are of direct relevance to the structuring, content, and performance of contracts.

The 'commercial process' is therefore to ensure that all relevant stakeholder views have been incorporated and evaluated, to ensure that the needs (of the buyer/sellers) and capabilities (of the seller and subcontractors) have been aligned, monitoring and evaluating the performance of a contract consistent with the organization's strategic goals and objectives, and ensuring that the buyer and seller are capable of delivering the intended outcomes of the contract. In this sense, the contract may be viewed as a tool to undertake and convey 'commercial assurance' of a deal or commercial relationship, and this may be from either a buyer or seller perspective.

Commercial acumen is a critical skill set for creating and maintaining contractual relationships, for performing contract management job tasks, and for aligning and achieving the strategic objectives of the buyer or seller.

1.3 Business ethics

Business ethics are principles that guide decision-making. They are a guide to what is right or wrong for a business situation. The principles provide a shared way of addressing business situations. These principles may be called a code, standard, or practice. Most principles require business to be conducted with confidentiality, fairness, openness, respect, and trust.

To achieve this goal, the principles commonly address accountability, compliance, confidentiality, good faith, integrity, and professional conduct. Principles commonly specify prohibited behavior. Principles also provide guidance and resources for reporting and resolving business ethics issues.

Contract management requires business ethics because contract management is to service to the interests of others. Contract managers serve their organization while maintaining the trust of stakeholders and ensuring confidence in the integrity of the contract management process.

Contract managers adhere to the business ethics of their organization, their contracts, and their professional business associations. The contract manager makes decisions and resolves ethical issues by applying these principles to the situation at hand.

A code of ethics is an essential element of any profession. Adhering to business ethics builds trust in and preserves the integrity of the contract management process. It also holds contract managers and contracting organizations accountable for their actions. Business ethics help avoid the loss of jobs and business, reputational harm, and civil and criminal penalties.

1.4 Compliance

A key contract management skill is compliance with applicable laws, government regulations, contracts, policies, and business ethics. Compliance with multiple requirements can occur throughout the Contract Life Cycle.

Contract managers have compliance responsibilities regarding business ethics, prevention, internal control systems, monitoring, auditing, reporting, investigating, enforcement, discipline, and corrective action.

To be compliant with requirements, contract managers must have a working knowledge of the laws, codes, regulations, policies, and other sources of guidance that define the environment in which the contract manager operates. Also, it is critical for the contract manager to know when and how to access specific legal advisory services to support contract objectives.

Furthermore, it is essential for the contract manager to abide by and advocate for all local and international compliance regulations, including trade compliance and trade-control laws, copyright laws, privacy and data protection, cyber and physical security, and anti-trust and anti-competition regulations.

1.5 Situational assessment

Leveraging lessons learned to manage current and future contracts is a critical responsibility in contract management. Successful contract managers:

1. Capture, document, and share knowledge effectively;
2. Apply learning from past contracts through documented lessons learned;
3. Shape and manage requirements to align with an organization's vision, mission, and strategic goals;
4. Recognize how seemingly independent contract actions impact each other now and in the future;
5. Understand product and systems life cycle principles;
6. Use the market research techniques to collect, analyze, and implement market intelligence;
7. Identify and implement opportunities for process improvement and optimization;
8. Seek subject matter experts for input and insight;
9. Reserve the chance of contract management processes within defined time limits; and
10. Negotiate meaningful contract terms and conditions that meet the needs of customers and stakeholders.

1.6 Team dynamics

The buyer and seller teams combine the functional disciplines of buyers and sellers for the common purpose of satisfying customer needs. While buyer and seller teams may work independently in the pre-award phase, the relationship becomes formal upon contract award and continues as a single team until the contract is closed. Members of the buyer and seller teams are expected to add value by performing their functions and knowing their roles throughout the Contract Life Cycle phases.

To be successful, each member must have a working knowledge of all stakeholder roles on the team. The roles with whom the contract manager will likely interact can include engineering and technology, sales and account management, finance, legal, logistics, project management, procurement, supply chain, quality control, and others. Buyer and seller teams may include members internal to their organization and/or external representatives.

Familiarity with each role helps the team work cohesively, identifying gaps or overlaps in responsibilities and ensuring seamless operation.

The buyer and seller teams must be able to:

1. Conduct meaningful collaboration to make accurate and timely decisions while solving complex contracting problems and forming an effective contract relationship;
2. Identify opportunities for process improvement and optimization; and
3. Collect and record lessons learned.

1.7 Communication and documentation

Effective communication among all affected parties is critical for ensuring contract management outcomes. Communication must:

1. Minimize the effect of personal biases;
2. Maximize the likelihood of accurate results; and
3. Facilitate communication among affected parties.

1.7.2 Documentation

Contract managers facilitate communication through clear, concise documentation and communications processes. Documentation is often prepared, recorded, and retained in appropriate systems, regardless of medium, to support decisions made and actions taken. Examples of topics to document include, but are not limited to:

1. Contracts and the planning strategy leading to a contract;
2. Verbal and nonverbal exchanges;
3. Rationale used in decision making and business judgment;
4. Mutually agreed-upon expectations;
5. Planned and unplanned events;
6. Performance issues and accountability;
7. Conflicts and their resolutions;
8. Changes and proposed solutions;
9. Risk management and mitigation;
10. Opportunity development and execution;
11. Contract compliance and performance quality;
12. Buyer and seller relationship management programs; and
13. Knowledge gained and lessons learned.

I-B. Introduction to the Contract Life Cycle phases

Contracts have a distinct beginning and end, and the Contract Life Cycle defines these parameters. The Contract Life Cycle generally consists of three contract phases: 2.0 Pre-award, 3.0 Award, and 4.0 Post-award.

Contract management processes performed by contract managers generally fall into five domains within the three Contract Life Cycle phases. Figure 4 illustrates how the domains relate to the life cycle phases, and Figure 5 illustrates the domains and their outcomes. Each Contract Life Cycle phase and domain have specific competencies and job tasks that together are called 'processes'.

2.0 Pre-award Contract Life Cycle phase

Pre-award is the first phase of the Contract Life Cycle. The pre-award process involves the contract management functions of 'contract planning' and includes the business processes for buyers to produce requests and sellers to prepare offers.

There are two domains within the pre-award life cycle phase:

2.1 Develop buying strategy

Develop buying strategy is primarily the domain of the buyer. It contains the processes of 'Plan buying strategy' and 'Request offers'.

2.2 Develop selling strategy

Develop selling strategy is primarily the domain of the seller. It contains the processes of applying business practices and developing strategies to pursue and obtain contract award. The value added by this domain is in developing an offer with the intent of entering into a contract subject to any changes arising during the form contract domain.

2.3 Develop buying strategy

Develop buying strategy is primarily the domain of the buyer. It contains the processes of determining the elements of the customer requirements (technical, business, regulatory, etc.) to the seller. The value added by this domain is the accurate presentation of the customer requirement through a buying strategy leading to responsive offers and resulting in successful contract performance.

2.3.1 Plan buying strategy

Plan buying strategy is the process by which a 'body of all personnel responsible for acquiring goods or services are coordinated and integrated through a comprehensive plan for fulfilling the customer's need(s) in a timely manner at a reasonable price. It includes developing the overall strategy for managing the buying process.

2.3.2 Request offers

Request offers is the process of implementing the plan by soliciting responses from sellers in order to fulfill a customer need. It produces a clear and concise buying strategy that effectively communicates all the buyer's requirements and enables the sellers to provide comprehensive, responsive offers.

2.2 Develop selling strategy

Develop selling strategy is primarily the domain of the seller. It contains the processes of applying business practices and developing strategies to pursue and obtain contract award. The value added by this domain is in developing an offer with the intent of entering into a contract subject to any changes arising during the form contract domain.

2.2.1 Plan selling strategy

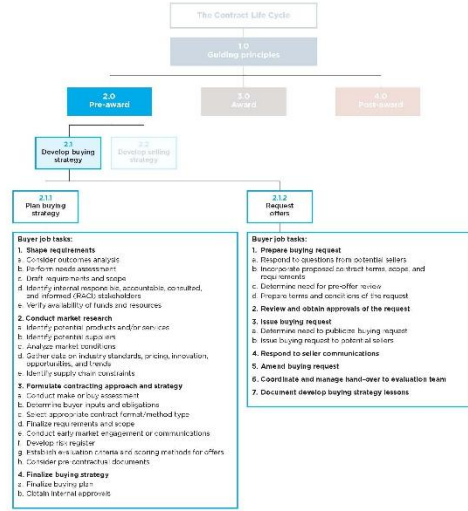

Plan selling strategy is the process of understanding the buyer's needs aligned to the seller's organizational goals, assessing the market (including potential partners, suppliers, and competitors), determining the proposed offer governance model (prime contractor, consortium, joint venture, etc.), and organizing pre-sales offer activities to plan for the preparation of the offer.

2.2.2 Prepare offer

Prepare offer is the process of executing the selling strategy through developing a compelling offer aimed at winning the contract. The skillful application of common job tasks in preparing an offer will enhance both risk management and opportunity exploitation by clearly demonstrating the seller's capability, compliance to requirements and terms, and any assumptions or dependencies.

3.0 Award Contract Life Cycle phase

The second Contract Life Cycle phase is Award. The award process involves the contract management functions known as 'contract formation' and reflects all the business processes performed by both the buyer and seller that produces an awarded contract. Some contracts are very simple, and others are exceedingly complex, but the majority fall somewhere in between.

The processes in the award life cycle phase interact with each other and are continuously integrated with the guiding principles. In addition, the results of the processes of the award life cycle phase are directly impacted by the cumulative effect of the processes and results in the pre-award life cycle phase, and they will have a direct impact on the performance and results of the processes in the post-award life cycle phase. The domain, competencies, and common job tasks in the award life cycle phase are presented in Figure 8.

There is one domain in the award phase:

3.1 Form contract – The processes involved in the form contract domain produce the contract.

3.1 Form contract

Form contract involves the process of evaluating the offer, planning for and conducting negotiations, selecting the source, and awarding the contract.

The value added by this domain is in mitigating or eliminating contract performance risk by determining reasonable cost and pricing, assessing commercial and contractual conditions, negotiating prices, terms, and conditions, and selecting the best source.

3.1.1 Evaluate offer

Evaluate offer is the process of analyzing submitted offers in accordance with the buying request evaluation criteria to select the source that has the highest probability of satisfactory contract performance. The buyer should also evaluate: 1) the contract harmonization of clauses and processes, and 2) the overall robustness with the offer potential or existing contracts (e.g., with its own customer, its partners, its other suppliers, etc.).

3.1.2 Prepare for negotiations

Prepare for negotiations is the process of preparing for interaction between the buyer and seller regarding all aspects of the offer and its terms, and often involves clarifying requirements and parties requesting changes or consideration of an alternate approach that may be consistent with the buying strategy requirements. This process involves selecting offers for negotiation, assessing offer analysis, preparing negotiations, issuing notice of negotiations to offers, amending offers, and withdrawing offers.

3.1.3 Conduct negotiations

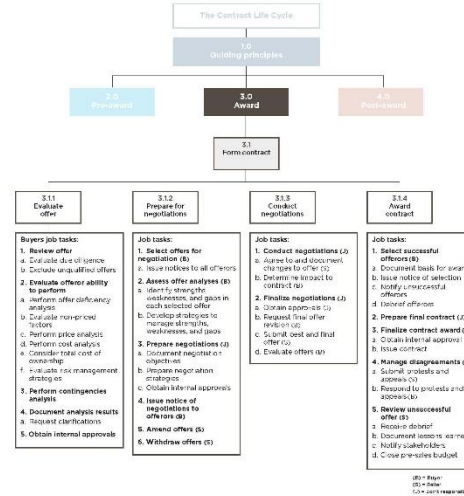

Conduct negotiations is the interaction between the buyer and seller regarding all aspects of the offer and its terms, and often involves clarifying requirements and parties requesting changes or consideration of an alternate approach that may be consistent with the buying strategy requirements. This interaction involves both parties collaborating to find common ground or offer compromises among their differences in quantity, price, delivery, quality, governing law, contract period, or other factors.

3.1.4 Award contract

Award contract is the process of the buyer and seller executing a contract offer coming to an agreement on the terms and conditions to deliver goods and services. This process involves selecting the successful offer, finalizing the contract award, and managing disagreements.
