CLERK'S ALERT

Proposed Child Support Orders with $0 Transfer Payment must be presented to the assigned Judicial Officer and will no longer be accepted in the Order for Review Queue.

Effective May 30, 2022, agreed or default proposed final orders in family law cases, with a child support transfer payment of $0, can no longer be submitted through the Orders for Review Queue.

If a party is represented, the child support order proposing a $0 transfer payment and all other required and/or proposed final orders, must be submitted with a Declaration in Lieu of Formal Proof and an Attorney's Certificate of Compliance in the following manner:

- Presentation must be set without oral argument in front of the assigned trial judge. (See LCR 7)
- For Trial by Affidavit cases, presentation must be scheduled on the TBA Motions Calendar. Oral argument will not be required.
- When there is no assigned trial judge, presentation must be noted without oral argument before the UFC Chief Judge.

Final orders improperly submitted to the Orders for Review Queue will be rejected.

This change does not affect Self-Represented cases which will continue to be presented through the Family Law Facilitators Office.
