

November 2015

The Georgetown Wet Weather Treatment Station project is expected to reach the 30% design milestone in early March 2016. By 30% design, the wet weather treatment station site layout and conveyance route to the river will be decided, and major architecture and landscaping elements are in place. Below are two interim designs.

Birds-eye view from the corner of 4th Ave South and S Michigan St.

"Plan" or overhead view